

Sharad Purnima Garba Night Celebration at College of Horticulture

The College of Horticulture, Anand Agricultural University, Anand, celebrated Sharad Purnima Garba Night with immense devotion, enthusiasm, and cultural splendor on October 7, 2025. The event, organized within the college premises, brought together students, faculty, and staff to rejoice in the vibrant spirit of Navratri.

The celebration commenced with the aarti of Maa Amba, collectively performed by students and staff to seek divine blessings for happiness and prosperity. This was followed by spirited Garba and Dandiya performances, reflecting the rich cultural heritage of Gujarat. The rhythmic beats of traditional music and the graceful dance steps filled the evening with joy, energy, and togetherness.

The event offered a wonderful platform for students to showcase their creativity, enthusiasm, and team spirit, while fostering camaraderie among juniors, seniors, and faculty members. The celebration concluded with light refreshments, leaving participants with cherished memories of a delightful and harmonious evening.

The entire program was successfully coordinated by the faculty and SRC members of the College of Horticulture under the guidance of Dr. N. I. Shah, Principal, College of Horticulture, AAU, Anand. The event beautifully combined academic vibrancy with cultural tradition, making it a memorable and joyous celebration for all.
